

World Geography Awareness Week - 'Geolino' 2023

During the annual World Geography Awareness Week - 'Geolino' celebration on November 28th, the Geography students and staff organized a special event. Prof. Barnali Gogoi from Cotton University was invited to speak on the topic 'Power of Place,' discussing the significant influence of geographic location on culture, identity, and society. This gathering provided a platform for insightful discussions, promoting a better understanding of how people and their environment are interconnected within the realm of Geography. Later, Dr. Shukla Acharjee, gave award and cash prize to the top student of 2023 for her outstanding academic achievements in loving memory of her beloved father and mother Late Sri Santi lal Acharjee and Late Smt. Aparna Acharjee. The yearly release included both the newsletter and ecobulletin, along with the unveiling of the latest edition of the Asian Journal of Spatial Science.
